Get access to all your data

Manage data from multiple sources with Nectari's extract, transform, load (ETL) tool, DataSync. Reduce the time and costs of additional labor or tools for prepping or cleaning data. Migrate data from legacy or third-party systems, consolidate data between disparate databases, and centralize data into a data warehouse. With support for real-time data integration, DataSync keeps your systems continuously synchronized, while Nectari's write-back capabilities let users push transformed data back into Acumatica when needed.

Empower all users

Nectari empowers all employees, technical and non-technical, by removing reliance on IT for reports and insights. With its AI Copilot, it analyzes data, explains both what happened and why, and delivers plain-language insights into trends, changes, and variances. Offering AI-powered targeted recommendations on what to explore and how to present findings, users can quickly create views, manipulate data and visualize results through over 100 charts with advanced calculations, , and access all reports from our centralized command center that keeps content organized and easy to manage.

Keep your data secure

Manage granular security options from a central location and implement them across individuals or groups. There's no need to create multiple copies of the same report, as each user will only see the data they have been granted access to.

Collaborate with colleagues

Quickly share the right information with all stakeholders by emailing, exporting, printing, and sending an external link to the report you want to share. Benefit from advanced distribution features such as conditional alerts, data security, reporting packs and more.
